About Our Mill Ends!

An interesting little story condensed into one chapter. Away back in the early 60's Mill Remnants were first introduced in this country by the founder of this house, and since then it has grown to such magnitude that today it seems to be a business which has thousands of imitators. Remnants and Mill Ends are two separate and distinct factors. The one is the accumulation of odds and ends and broken assortments from the regular stock, while the other is the advance guard of what is to be the style and fashion when the new piece goods are placed on sale for the season which is to follow. Our Mill Ends, and, by the way, we control the best of all the home and foreign mills, have made us famous not alone among the consuming public, but also among merchants who cater to your wants the same as we do, for we've supplied goods in case lots to some of the largest concerns as far west as California, as far south as Florida, as far east as Massachusetts. Our Baltimore ware rooms, where these goods are first received and prepared for selling, is a very interesting spot. They are not received in the same condition you see them, when you come to make your selections. They come to us in packages of 300 yards, assorted, which are afterward matched in color and pattern, by experts, who put them up in such lengths as would be the most suitable for waists, skirts or full dresses. A very essential point which we want you to know, and that is that no one particular pattern is in one continued length, because the usual mill pieces run from I to 10 vards, which often takes from 1 to 3 pieces to make a complete pattern. The goods are guaranteed perfect, and if correctly measured, will be found to run over the amount of yards which the ticket calls for, and if compared with the same goods in the piece, you will find your savings will average from 25 to 50 per cent on every yard you buy. Some of our very elegant specials lowly priced, which will hold reception to all comers tomorrow, in our Remnant Department, third floor.

After-inventory Sale of Women's Ready-to-wear.

We have placed notably small prices on goods we want to sell in a hurry. Inventory being over, we are more anxious than ever to close out the small lots. Accordingly we have privileged the blue pencil to cut deeper into values, disregarding cost, and in many instances loss. There is little chance for disappointment in the present offerings, whether it be for the frugal minded or those who may indulge in the extreme of luxury, as reductions are not limited on certain lots only, but are sweeping, taking in almost every garment. Of course, there are some few exceptions.
